Web Design & Implementation

       I have come up with three browser illustrations, which are bursting color circles, check-box, and bouncing circles. The kinds of experience I intend to take are only to make the illustrations more enjoyable for the audience and myself. They all will be design through Adobe programs and I will make a specific code to make objects move it self. For the bursting color circles will have many different circles popping out and will go grayscale at first. After it spread everywhere, it will automatically change colors Next is the check-box, I will make a box with a text besides it. Just wait till you click a box and it will make an animated scribble. Finally bouncing circles, a circle will show up on the page that will tell you to click it. When you click the circle, it will expand into many circles with bouncing animation and you will see all different social media logos.
